I am using has_many through relationship (User - Likes - Object). I've got a form with a link that takes the user to the object creation page where they are to select which Object they would like to like. I've got a checkbox in my form which calls the likes_controller's create action. I've got a delete button that calls the destroy action. My problem is, when the user clicks the link to the object to like I need to send a link to the new page. I've found this post and think it's what I need but can't find it in the docs or even figure out how to create this in rails. User likes object (:controller => "likes", :action => "create", :id => @object.id)) do if %> :hidden %> 82157476af
